*The soil is the great connector of lives, the source and destination of all. It is the

for it we have no community because without proper care for it we have no life.*

Community Supported Agriculture

HOPE'S EDGE FARM HOPE, MAINE

In Japan where the concept of Community Supported Agriculture (CSA) was first conceived, the word used to describe it is "teikei". The literal translation of "teikei" is "relationship" or "partnership". However, in this context its philosophical translation is "food with the farmer's face". This translation becomes clear when one begins to understand that CSA's offer both consumer and grower the opportunity to reconnect with one another, and in doing so redevelop relationships around the root of all culture: food.

About Hope's Edge Farm

Comprised of 100 acres of open fields and mixed woodlands, Hope's Edge Farm is located in Northwest Hope. Historically this land was home to three generations of the Morse family who, up until the mid 1980's, ran one of the preeminent dairy farms in the region. In 1997 Holly Miller purchased the land and soon recognized that the land needed more attention than she was able to give it. In 2002 she invited me to lease some of the land and buildings in order to make it once again a working farm. This agreement between Holly and I marked the birth of Hope's Edge CSA making this 2017 season our 16th. Although not organically certified, we at Hope's Edge Farm are committed to growing without the use of agricultural chemicals. In addition we have been using Biodynamic farming methods since our inception.

What does it mean to be a shareholder?

As a member of Hope's Edge CSA you will be purchasing a share of the harvest. By paying for your share in advance, you are underwriting the harvest for the entire season and are entitled to a weekly share of the local, fresh, seasonal, unadulterated produce. As the farmers, it is our responsibility to work with nature to provide a beautiful and bountiful harvest. Nature, however, can be fickle and in a season of weather extremes even our best efforts may be hampered. Therefore, by purchasing a share, you not only share in the bounty but also share in the risk. Having said this, however, under "normal" weather conditions there is much to share.

Pick-up Options & Cost

Our season runs for 18 weeks beginning the third week of June and ending the third week in October. On-farm pick-up days are Tuesday or Friday. Pick-up hours are flexible. We also offer a Monday option with delivery to Rockland or to Avena Botanicas. We offer two share sizes: a HALF SHARE option intended to feed two adults and a child or a FULL SHARE for larger families or veggie lovers. Share prices are listed on the attached sign-up form. We do offer a limited sliding scale fee and we can accommodate payment arrangements to fit your budget.
